To Messrs. Mortimer & Moschray:

Dean Sins: In justice to Dr. Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, I wish to inform you that I was taken sick on the 3d day of January last, with an affection of the stomach, bowels, and kidneys. I was attended by four eminent physicians for more than two months—all to little er no effect. I had some knowledge of the great virtue in Hampton's Tincture from one bottle which my wife had taken two years since. May 4, 1862.

since.

I came to the conclusion that I would take no more medicine from my physicians, but try the Tincture; and I am happy to inform you I had not taken it two days before I felt its powerful influence upon my stomach. I have continued using the Tincture, and am now able to leave my room, and can eat any common diet without much inconvenience or pressure on my stomach.

The afflicted or their friends are daily visiting me, to learn of the great virtue there is in this Tincture of Hampton's.

I expect to send you several certificates in a few days—one especially from a young lady who has been confined to her room twelve months, with a disease of the head, affecting the brain.

Transition Coal.

Transition Coal.

This rare and valuable Coal is a variety not quite changed into an unthracite, and it has only been discovered (in large quantities) at three places upon our globe, vis: at South Wales, dreat Britain; at Donotz, in Russia, near the Black Sea; and at Dauphin and Lebanon counties, Pennsylvanis. In the London market this coal commands the highest price. It is now mined upon the large estate (23,000 acress) of the Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Company, situated in Pennsylvania, and it is nearer to the cities of Baltimore and Washington than the coal of any other region. For easy ignition, durability of fire, complete combustion, easy adaptation to the temperature of the weather, and its great power in generating heat, it is the next coal in the world. It has the inflammatality of the bituminous coal, with the cleanliness of the anthracite, and a greater durability than either. It burns without making any soot of visible smoke, and the combustion is so complete that it retains the fire until all the coal is consumed. Not so with the anthracites, especially the hard and heavy kinds. They do not burn up, and honce the common troublesome practice of sifting their ashes to obtain more feel. In burning the Transition Coal there is no weatte, for the small coals made by handling, burn as well as ordinary coal. All should be burned together. If screened at all the dust only should be taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaviest coals are the most economical for ordinary purposes. This might be the case if coals were rold by measurement, but never when they are sold by weight. In Taylor's valuable work, (Statistics of Coal,) the details are given to show that 31 pounds of a free-burning red ashyiolded more heat to a room in 15 hours, than 37 pounds of a heavy white ash coal, making the red ash, at $5.50, to be more economical than the white ash at $4.01 per ton. Any person accustomed to use these heavy coals will be astonished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

ished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

An apprehension exists with some that the free-burning coals have a tendency to clinker. Now, as a general rule, no coal will clinker unless a greater draught be applied to it than the coal naturally requires. No one would think of applying a bellows constantly to a fire made of seasoned hickory or oak wood, and it would be equally as absurd to apply a blast constantly to a free-burning coal. But the heavy white sah anthracites cannot be burnt without a powerful draft, and without using a larger quantity of coal than the temperature of the weather sometimes requires. Various patterns of stoves, furnaces, cooking ranges, &c., are invented annually to conquer this difficulty, but it has never been done with complete success. In every contrivances, however, which has been fitwented to burn coal, the transition variety will make a beautiful fire, and no complaint will ever be made to a manufacturer or seller of grates or stoves when this coal is used. The draft alone is to be regulated by a damper. In introducing this new coal for the first the prepared as it now is by steam power machinery for domestic use, it may give greater confidence to the buyer to say that the celebrated free-burning red ash veins in the Peach Orchard district, near Pottsville, are a continuation of the Dauphin veins, and they approach the nearest in value to the Transition coal.

Shipments of the Transition coal have already been made to the District of Columbia, and it can be obtained at retail from the following persons:

Wm. T. Dove, Washington. Woodford Stone, Washington.

DISCOVERED AT LAST! MR. SCHLESSINGER has invented a Metallic Peu which supplies a want long existing. It is coated with gutta percha, and most effectually resists the corrosive properties of the ink, and, being pointed with platina, has all the flexibility and smoothness so dosirable in writing. It is equal in all respects to the most highly finished diamond-pointed gold pens, and is to be had at a price so reasonable that it must come into universal use.

This highly useful and desirable pen has been tested already in this city in engrossing on parchment, and in the ordinary business writings, and its superiority is fully adulted.

CELDOM have I taken up a book of biography with which I have been so well pleased and really profited as with Wesley and his Coadjutors, by Prof. Larrabee. Those pure pages sparkle like diamonds, with strange as well as beautiful incidents, touching in turn every chord of the human heart, and arousing its latent energies to deeds of noble daring. Wesley is exhibited as he really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful principally as an agent of Providence in reviving pure religion in the world.

The second volume opens with Charles Wesley, that prince of lyirc poets, who is made to pass before the reader so well-defined that he seems to see his form and hear his voice, and be thrilled with bis sublime hymns, a rich legacy left to the Church in all after time.

voice, and be thrilled with bis sublime hymns, a rich legacy left to the Church in all sfer time.

Whittelid, the percless orator and devoted Christian, next appears, with his matchless powers, arousing Great Britain and America with an eloquence and unction that literally bore down all before it, turning the people to God by thousands, till from the most degraded—degraded became forsaken of their religious teachers—plants of right-counsess were seen springing up and adorning the garden of the Lord. John Fletcher closes the list of notable worthies in the two volumes before us, and every way worthy is he to do it. He is made to pass along in his own incomparable, beautiful simplicity, with a holmess all but superhuman, possessing talents that an angel might have envied; the acutest and ablest controversialist writer of his own or any subsequent age.—Zon's Herald.
